IRS Power of Attorney

Individuals with tax liabilities often turn to attorneys, accountants, or other professionals for assistance with the IRS. In order for a representative to speak to the IRS and attempt to resolve issues, the taxpayer must grant his representative power of attorney through a Form 2848. IRS Form 2848 allows a representative to call the IRS on your behalf, receive your confidential tax information, and represent you. In order to complete Form 2848, you must include all of your personal information (name, address, social security number, etc...), the name of your appointed representative, the years for which you are granting them access and authority, and the actual tax matters for which they will be representing you. Once you have completed Form 2848, it must be submitted to the IRS (by mail or fax), before they will speak to your representative. In the event you wish to revoke such a power of attorney, you must file a new Form 2848.
